RESIDENTS of all ages have been getting into the Olympic spirit.

Aspiring young athletes took part in the first Hackney Summer Games; and an event in the Town Hall Square saw over 400 people get involved in planning how Hackney Wick, and the whole Olympic Park site, will be transformed after the 2012 Games. At the Summer Games, aspiring athletes from primary schools competed in sports including baseball, cricket, athletics and martial arts, following a ten-week training programme. They also included the Hackney Personal Bests finals, with youngsters recording top scores in discus, javelin, shot put, long jump, triple jump and boccia – a Paralympic sport similar to boules.

POINT TAKEN

By James Willsher

OVER 70 knives, guns and dangerous weapons have been taken off the borough's streets in a London-wide police crackdown.

Since the Operation Blunt2 campaign to tackle serious youth violence was launched just over a month ago, 28 people have been charged with knife-related crimes including possession of an offensive weapon, which carries a maximum sentence of four years' imprisonment.

Police have used methods such as intelligence-led stop and search, knife detection arches at transport hubs, searching estates for discarded and hidden weapons, automatic number plate recognition operations, and test purchases.

Chief Superintendent Steve Dann, Hackney's Borough Commander, said: "Knife crime destroys families and I would like to see parents taking more responsibility – ensuring their children do not leave the home carrying a knife, for example. Young people who carry knives and other offensive weapons are more likely to be victims of knife crime themselves.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "I congratulate Hackney police on their success in getting these dangerous weapons off the streets.

"The Council will continue to work with the police, schools and families to further reduce knife crime and to make Hackney a safer place."

In recent months, the Council's Trading Standards officers have been conducting test purchases using young volunteers. Six shopkeepers who sold knives to under-18s are now set to be prosecuted – with a maximum penalty of £5,000.

Message from the Mayor

Carrying a blade does nobody any good

The tragic death of 16 year-old Ben Kinsella in Islington last week showed once again how knife crime can tear apart families and communities. Knife crime in Hackney has fallen by over a third during the past two years and there are now over 15 London boroughs with higher levels of knife crime.

But one incident is one too many and tackling violent crime is a top priority for the Council and the police.

The London-wide police initiative Operation Blunt2 is doing good work in removing dangerous and offensive weapons from our streets, with Hackney police seizing over 70 weapons so far.

We're also cracking down on shops that illegally sell knives to children. The Council's Trading Standards team has been working with underage volunteers to test whether shops will sell knives to them, and those that did now face prosecution.

But we also need to make sure that young people have an alternative to the knife-carrying gang culture, and I am pleased that Hackney is being nationally recognised for our work in this area including, last week, by the Home Affairs Select Committee of MPs.

The vast majority of Hackney's young people are law-abiding citizens who play a huge role in making our borough the most diverse and dynamic in London. We will continue to support them by transforming Hackney's schools and providing more activities for young people to do. At the same time, we will not tolerate the small minority of young people who choose to make both themselves and others more vulnerable.

Sport inspiration

Battling it out to become the most improved young athletes were children from Berger, De Beauvoir, Gainsborough, Grazebrook, Holy Trinity CE, Jubilee, Parkwood, Sebright, St Matthias, Tyssen, Whitmore and Woodberry Down primaries. All the schools received sports equipment.

The finalists were joined by world 400m champion Christine Ohuruogu, who is tipped to win a medal at the Beijing 2008 Olympics. She said: "I'm delighted all the children enjoyed trying new sports, and I hope that they continue taking part for enjoyment and to improve their fitness levels."

The winning athletes from Berger Primary with Christine Ohuruogu. Second place went to De Beauvoir, and in third place were Parkwood and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, said: "One of the Council's long-held ambitions is to inspire as many residents as possible to get involved in regular physical activity."

Youngsters can also draw inspiration from Hackney stars. Dervis Konuralp will be swimming in the Beijing Paralympics, starting on 6 September; and singer Leona Lewis has reportedly been asked to take part in the closing ceremony of the Beijing Olympics on 24 August, when London becomes official host city for 2012.

The Summer Games programme was organised by the School Sports Partnership and the Council's 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Unit and funded by Team Hackney.

The Council's top priority is making sure we secure the best legacy for our residents

Pinpointing the future

A SERIES of 2012 Games legacy events took place on 25 June. Adults and children built their vision for the future by moving pieces around on the London Development Agency's giant map. The Olympic Delivery Authority gave a presentation and answered questions about the legacy of the media centres, which will accommodate around 20,000 journalists during the Games and will remain as an employment area after 2012. Council officers were on hand to provide information about signing up for 2012-related jobs, training and volunteering opportunities.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "The Council is committed to helping deliver the best Games ever, but our top priority is making sure we secure the best possible legacy for our residents. I'm pleased so many local people attended this event, as their views and ideas are vital."

Lessons for life

TEENAGERS witnessed a shocking reconstruction of the aftermath of a crash at a special pre-driving awareness course.

The Road Runner event at Hackney Marshes car park on 2 July saw 45 pupils from Cardinal Pole School, E9, learn about problems they could encounter as budding drivers.

The 16 and 17-year-olds participated in sessions organised by the Council's Trading Standards Team, in partnership with its Road Safety and Drug Action teams, the Red Cross, and British School of Motoring. Issues addressed included resisting peer pressure; the effects of alcohol and drugs; the dangers of buying an un-roadworthy vehicle; giving first aid after an accident; and the consequences of unsafe driving.

Officers from Homerton Fire Station cut a crash dummy from a car collision scenario, talked the audience through what they were doing and answered questions.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Learning to drive and "I am pleased that this collaboration between council services, partners and external organisations is able to provide young people in Hackney with information and advice that will help them to become responsible drivers."

For two students, Kirstie Philpott and Merzan Roudette, there was an additional highlight, a lesson with a BSM instructor. The 17-year-olds were both thrilled to get their first try behind the wheel with a turn around the car park.

Fiona Fletcher-Smith, to celebrate an affordable housing scheme in Wenlock Street, by Genesis Housing Group. Meg Hillier, MP for Hackney South and Shoreditch, was also at the event. She said: "This represents a wonderful example of how Hackney is making a real difference in providing all-affordable homes in the very heart of London." Cllr Jamie Carswell, Deputy Mayor of Hackney also spoke at the event. He said: "We need to ensure our services are working together to meet the housing needs of families. "It is a credit to Genesis' co-ordinated approach on the project that this development is really taking shape and making a difference to residents in the area. It's great to see how many people have contributed to the time capsule." Genesis is working with Islington and Shoreditch Housing Association on the scheme. Work started in March 2007 and it is expected to be complete by May 2009.

Dalston diversion update

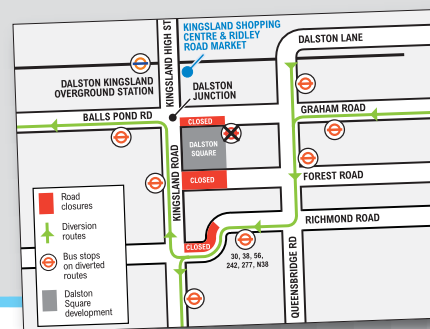

MAJOR roadworks in Dalston to allow the extension of the East London line to Highbury and Islington will begin on 19 July for around 10 months.

Transport for London needs to replace a Victorian road bridge that runs above the new line, so will put traffic restrictions on Dalston Lane between the junctions of Queensbridge Road and Kingsland Road, which may lead to some delays.

Phase one of the restrictions will close the southern footpath and retain two-lane, two-way traffic with a northern footpath in place for pedestrians. This will last for around four months.

Phase two will start in mid-November (see map below). It will see traffic reduced to one-way eastbound with the northern footpath retained. Westbound traffic, including buses, will be diverted from Dalston Lane along Queensbridge Road, Richmond Road and Kingsland Road. This will last for two months.

Phase three will see two-way traffic restored with the southern footpath reinstated and the northern footpath closed. The work is scheduled for completion by the end of May 2009. The work will allow the East London line to connect with Highbury and Islington via Canonbury in 2011. To help bus passengers safely cross Dalston Lane by using an existing pelican crossing, the bus stop near Beechwood Road will temporarily be moved east to near Laurel Street. It is expected to return to its current location next March.

Songs in the round

SEVERAL hundred enthusiastic young people gathered in the Round Chapel, E5, on the third day of the three-week Hackney Schools Music Festival. Secondary school students at the free event patiently waited for their turn, and cheered each other on as talented young Hackney musicians filled the rafters with notes and beats.

The musical sections seemed to start up spontaneously, one after another. The melodic and exotic sounds of a steel band kicked off proceedings, followed by a classical orchestra. A stirring solo performance from one young boy brought the house down.

There was more singing from solo artists and choirs, rousing such emotion that one female singer was moved to tears.

The informal layout encouraged a happy atmosphere; different schools sat side by side; and trombone playing interlaced with drums, alongside grand piano and guitars.

Music sprang from every corner, with a rapturous burst of bongo drumming refreshing the vibe.

came straight from the heart and soul of all the performers.

Delivering on collection

HACKNEY has the most improved Council Tax collection rates in London – and the second most improved in the country.

The Council collected 92.4 per cent of what it was owed for homes in 2007/08, up 1.9 percentage points on the previous year's figure of 90.5 per cent, and the highest increase in the capital. Cllr Jamie Carswell, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "Making sure the Council is high-performing and efficient is an important priority for the for the Council. "This is a great illustration of how the Council is improving, and improving its services for residents."

The collection of the borough's business rates (NNDR) also saw a boost, up to 99.3 per cent from 98.4 per cent in the same period, the joint third highest rate in London. Local Government Minister John Healey said: "Collection of council tax continues beyond the year in which it is due, and I urge councils not to let up the pressure, but to continue their good work on chasing arrears and make further improvements to their collection rates. It is only fair that everyone pays what they owe."

Hackney children with Novak Djokovic

Ace day for children

LUCKY primary school children were served the chance to be coached by world tennis number three Novak Djokovic. Youngsters from Lauriston, William Patten, Jubilee and St Paul's with St Michael's primary schools took part in the skills session on the South bank, SE1. Novak took time out of his Wimbledon preparations to join children from the five host boroughs for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games to encourage them to participate in more sport.

The event was organised by Adidas, Tier One sponsor of the 2012 Games, which also announced its pledge to put a 625sq metre community multi-sport area into each of the host boroughs after the Beijing 2008 Games.

HACKNEY girl and British number one Anne Keovathong made it through to the second round of the Wimbledon ladies singles.

After beating American Vania King she made a valiant effort against defending champion Venus Williams, losing 7-5 6-2. Anne, 24, a former pupil at Kingsland Secondary School, E8, lives with her parents in Amhurst Road. She is the first British woman since 1998 to gain automatic entry to Wimbledon.

“The whole development will bring major investment to the local community”

The mayor scales a ladder to get a better look at work on the library site, after the concrete for the ground floor had been poured

By

WORK to build a new library and public archive as part of a major development in Dalston is on track, with the state of the art facility due to open next summer.

The library, replacing the existing CLR James Library, will be more spacious and will offer a dedicated study space, community meeting rooms, an enhanced children's library and a café.

The library will be the largest constructed in the borough since 1907. Hackney Archives, which holds historical documents relating to the history of the borough from the 14th century to the present day, will also be on the site.

The community facility will be a key part of the new town centre development, which will also include more than 500 new homes, including affordable, social rented housing and homes for sale. There will also be shops, cafes and restaurants.

The library and archive will face onto Dalston Square – the largest new public space to be created in the area for more than 100 years. The square will also house the entrance to the new London Overground station, Dalston Junction, set to open in 2010 as part of the extended East London Line. Mayor of Hackney Jules Pipe said: "The library and archive will be valuable for residents, providing a wide range of opportunities to learn, research and visit for pleasure."

"The Dalston development will bring major investment to the community, with the borough's first proper link to the Tube network offering easier access to jobs across London and encouraging investment into the area."

Date at the palace

THE Queen's birthday honours last month saw five Hackney women recognised.

Donna Kinnair, from Clapton, was made Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire for services to nursing. She said: "It's fantastic for a Hackney girl. I had no idea it was going to happen. When you start work you don't imagine you'll be made a dame in 25 years."

Mrs Kinnair, who is director of nursing at Southwark Primary Care Trust, grew up in the borough, attending Rushmore Primary, E5, and Skinners Company

School for Girls, N16.

Ena Fry, of Dalston, received an MBE in recognition of a 40-year career dedicated to children in care. She retired in 2007 from her role at the Fostering Network. She said: "It was a great shock. There are so many people out there doing great things – you wonder why me?"

An MBE was awarded to Janette Hynes, founder of the Positive Mental Attitude Football League, offering mental health service users a chance to improve their health and social skills.

Janette, an occupational therapist with the City and Hackney Centre for Mental Health and qualified FA coach started the scheme for her patients Hackney in 2002. It now has 14 teams across six mental health trusts.

Margaret Knights, who works for HM Revenue and Customs, was 'surprised and thrilled' to receive an OBE, and said she was 'far from expecting it'. Her work includes a project to modernise pay-as-you-earn processes, and customer services work consulting with employers and individuals. She has lived in Hackney since the 1970s.

An OBE also went to Rachel Pinter, head of Yesodey Hatorah Secondary School for Girls, N16, for services to education.

Crowds disembark from the SS Empire Windrush in 1948 to start a new life in Britain

A milestone arrival for post-war Britain

THE arrival in the UK of the SS Empire Windrush on 22 June, 1948, was a milestone in the reconstruction of post-war Britain. The Windrush carried 492 people from Caribbean islands including Jamaica and Trinidad, and docked at Tilbury, Essex. Smaller numbers of West Indian residents had arrived to work in the UK before, but the image of Windrush's passengers filing down the gangplank is now seen as a cultural landmark of post-war Britain, and more followed throughout the 1950s. Many were ex-servicemen and young men, while some were responding to a newspaper advertisement offering for £28 and 10 shillings, a berth on the Windrush and job opportunities in the UK. Britain was just starting to recover from the ravages of the Second World War so there were plenty of jobs for the new arrivals, though some did not intend to stay permanently. Those with nowhere to go were taken to stay in Clapham South

Deep Shelter – which had been used by Londoners during the war to escape German bombing raids – until accommodation and employment was available. Ten years after the arrival of Empire Windrush there were 125,000 West Indians living in the UK, and today one per cent of the population of Britain is of Caribbean origin.

THE Speaker of Hackney marked the 60th anniversary of the arrival of the Empire Windrush by hosting a reception at the Town Hall on 22 June.

Following a service organised by the Borough Deans Group to mark the occasion at the Salvation Army Hall, Mare Street, Hackney's Windrush generation of the 1940s, 1950s and 1960s met up in the Speaker's Parlour with Speaker Cllr Ian Rathbone. He said: "The diversity that has come

“The diversity that has come from the Windrush phenomenon is to be celebrated and affirmed by all of us” from the Windrush phenomenon is to be celebrated and affirmed by all of us.”

The Speaker then presented those who attended the event with a map of the Caribbean in the 1930s, and also a lapel badge bearing the crest of the borough.

Members of the borough's Windrush generation have also recently attended workshops held by Lorna Holder, managing director of Tuareg Productions, as research for a play to be staged at the Hackney Empire.

Elenora Royerdesbonnes – ‘Supergran’

ELENORA has lived in the London Fields area for more than 40 years. She arrived from Dominica, in August, 1960, to join her husband and two brothers who had already come over in search of a new life.

Mrs Royerdesbonnes, 73, said: "In the West Indies, England was the 'mother country.'

"When I arrived at Victoria Station it was a very rainy day, and dull, cold and wet – and I'd thought the streets of England were paved with gold?" Seven years later after moving to Hackney, Mrs Royerdesbonnes began working in the borough's vibrant textiles industry. She still works – "my kids call me Supergran" – these days in an older people's home in Leytonstone.

The grandmother-of-12 remembers buying bottled pigs' trotters from a shop in Broadway Market, and today buys Caribbean produce in Ridley Road market. She feels that, although Hackney has seen progress over the years, it is becoming more expensive. In 1978, the year of Dominica's independence from the UK, she became involved with the Dominica Overseas Nationals Association, and three decades on she still attends meetings of the nationwide umbrella organisation. Although she arrived 12 years after the Windrush passengers, Mrs Royerdesbonnes wrote a play partly based on her experiences which was performed in Hackney Town Hall in 1991.

With a brother living down the road in Hoxton, and most of her family in Hackney, nearly 50 years after her solo journey from Dominica, Mrs Royerdesbonnes has long since considered the borough her home.

Longtime London Fields resident Elenora Royerdesbonnes came to England from Dominica in 1960

We're not here for ourselves

By
Paul Knipe

THE Reverend Rose Hudson-Wilkin is an inspirational character. One of the first female vicars in the country and serving two congregations in Hackney, she has dedicated her life to helping people achieve their potential.

Her latest focus is on helping children in the community, and the adults who care for them. She wants to educate, nurture, inspire and listen – and help lessen incidences of youth crime.

“We work with people, talk to them, help them identify and test their vocation” said Rose.

“I tell these people to listen to God’s voice; to be obedient and not to be hesitant, particularly for the sake of our children.”

Her illustrious career has spanned 20 years and has touched people around the world. She moved permanently to England in 1985.

Since then Rose has served on the Board of the World Council of Churches, representing the Church of England in Zimbabwe and Brazil.

She also served on the Governing Body of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge; and was on the Board of the Broadcasting Standards Commission.

“We’re here to make a difference – to make the world a better place than we found it”

A regular on Terry Wogan’s Pause for Thought BBC Radio 2 programme, Rose has also been the subject and maker of TV documentaries.

Rose has recently been appointed Her Majesty’s Chaplain and will preach in St James’ Palace Chapel – she is the first black person to hold the position.

She also chairs the Committee for Minority Ethnic Anglican Concerns, a national organisation that encourages people from minority ethnic backgrounds to reach positions of leadership in the Church.

How does she do it? Rose attributes her drive to her early years in Jamaica where she was surrounded by worthy peers – people she could be inspired by and respect; role models that gave her the courage and belief that she now instils in others. “I was grateful to grow up there as I saw an image and reflection of myself in all walks of life” she said, adding, “if children don’t see reflections of themselves in us we’re letting them down.”

Rose’s current project takes this belief and puts it into action. She plans to develop All Saints Church in Haggerston so that it offers out of school programmes, and meeting spaces for children and adults. It will also serve as a place to remind adults of their responsibilities as parents and their status as role models. She is now calling on people to come together to make the project a reality, for people who believe in the importance of community to step forward.

“We’re not here for ourselves”, Rose concluded, “we’re here to make a difference – to make the world a better place than we found it.”

THE GREEN GENIE

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I was at a friend's house last week, and they had a water butt, subsidised by their local Council. Does Hackney offer the same service?

A: The Council supply water butts at a subsidised rate, as well as compost bins. Water butts capture rain water from drain pipes, which can then be used to water the garden. To order a water butt, phone Original Organics on their free phone hotline on: 0808 1209676.

Residents can also request an order form from the recycling hotline.

Sustaining an interest

By

Annie Gilbert

OVER 100 teachers and pupils flocked to Hackney City Farm, E2, to take part in green workshops.

The day was hosted by Hackney Environmental Education Network (HEEN), a group of individuals and organisations involved in education for sustainable development in Hackney.

The event on 9 June was also a celebration of green activity in schools and a chance for everyone to share their experiences.

St John the Baptist School told of the measures its pupils have taken to turn green; Colvestone School spoke about its outdoor classroom; Skinners' Company's School for Girls brought a sustainability game they created; and St Paul's with St Michael's CE School shared news of their composting scheme.

Attendees had the chance to join in lively workshops to get hints and ideas about how to make their school more sustainable.

Katherine Hayward from ecoACTIVE, who was at the event, said: "There is a great deal of good work going on in Hackney's schools to make them greener, and students are ahead of the game when it comes to looking after the environment, but there is always more to do."

The HEEN event was linked to The Year of Food and Farming – supported by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs – an initiative that aims to promote healthy living by offering young people experience of the countryside, farming and food.

Have you got a snapping bug?

By Kate Gibney

IF you have a sharp eye for a photo – and can spot a bug at ten yards, then you could win a prize.

British Waterways is launching a wildlife photography competition for people living near canals, rivers and docks in East London and wants to see pictures of dragonflies and damselflies. The Regents Canal runs through Hackney, offering ample opportunity for photographers.

The aim of the competition is to encourage people of all ages to take part in British Waterways' fifth annual wildlife survey to record the species found on inland waterways. The information gathered is used to plan the protection and management of canals and rivers.

Last year there were almost 4,000 sightings of over 60 different species. For the 2008 survey, British Waterways has joined forces with the British Dragonfly Society to focus on rare dragonflies and damselflies.

The competition is open until 30 September, and has a special category for children under 12. The winning entries and a selection of runners-up will be published on British Waterways' website.

Regents Canal; and a male dragonfly

Cutting the carbon

HACKNEY'S carbon footprint takes centre stage as the Council prepares a plan to help tackle climate change in the borough.

The Council has investigated Hackney's CO2 emissions, and will use this information to set further targets for annual reductions.

The most recent results show that in 2005 the borough's total carbon emissions were 958,000 tonnes per annum, the lowest in London.

A key priority in the strategy will be to combat 'fuel poverty', where a household spends more than 10 per cent of its income on heating – a result of poor energy efficiency in a home, and rising energy costs.

In January this year the Council signed the Nottingham Declaration, a pledge to recognise climate change, and to work with residents, businesses and other organisations to reduce carbon emissions.

The Council's refuse collection fleet is also being fuelled with biodiesel blend to reduce emissions. Schemes to encourage cycling in Hackney have resulted in a 70 per cent increase since 1991 in cycle journeys to work, and 118 per cent increase overall.

Rocky road to stardom

By Ola Adeniran, 12

YOUNG Hoxton musicians are hoping for great careers – and say the Spice Girls better watch out because the Rocky Body Builders are coming through.

The young musicians are part of BAM! for Teens which is a music workshop for Special Needs teenagers and youths, and have started a band called the Rocky Body Builders. The band members say they will do anything to get to the top.

Paul, 15, the lead singer says “Next year we will practice for Britain’s Got Talent... we will get Geri to do for us what she did for the Spice Girls.”

Barry, 18, who’s the drummer, has already performed at the Hackney Empire, Hackney Tangle and the 02. He says, “I love to play music, listen to it and perform.”

The other band members are, Danny aged 14 on percussion and Saul aged 14 on drums. They all say they would be ecstatic if they became even more successful.

The group was set up three years ago and Tina Pinder who now runs the group told us how it got started. “Most kids, teenagers in particular, seemed to have nowhere to go regularly where they could learn how to play instruments, and so it was set up in response from calls from parents who were looking for a good musical activity for children with special needs.”

After the first year Tina set up her own small not-for-profit organisation called Kimnara Music, to try to get ongoing funding for the group. It is currently funded by the Jack Petchey Foundation.

The young musicians meet every week to practice in Hoxton Hall music studio which has two drum-kits, electric and acoustic guitars, bass guitars, keyboards and microphones. At the end of every term there is a special performance. The group also makes their own CDs.

Barry joined the Rocky Body Builders three years ago and Paul joined the project last September. He wanted to learn skills that are part of his ambitions to be a famous singer.

I found their music surprising. I thought it was great and full of energy. It

“Next year we’ll practise for Britain’s Got Talent – we’ll get Geri to do for us what she did for the Spice Girls” had a lot of charisma. I would have never expected it to be that good. Their music had personality and allures you to listen to more of it. It was truly amazing.

My opinion

When it’s good to live in a wild place

By Rhasan Brunner, 13

Some people think Hackney is a wild place to live in. But there are places in Hackney where wildlife isn’t a bad thing.

I think Hackney is a cool place because of all the parks.

Clissold Park is magnificent because you get to see friendly, cute animals in the enclosure. When I’m in Clissold Park it feels like I’m at one with nature because of the green spaces, ponds and animals.

It’s a really interesting park to be in and holds events like Stokefest where there are lots of activities.

Other parks I find interesting are parks like Hackney Downs and Butterfield Green.

Butterfield Green is a local park near my house and it’s really lovely because it’s been there longer than I’ve been around. There are birds like crows and pigeons. When I was a baby my parents took me there for walks. Every time I go to Butterfield Park I have good memories.

I sometimes go to Hackney Downs and used to go when I was a toddler. I used to think it was really unique because the playground was really good. It was busy with older and younger people as well as flies and wasps! I used to like the roundabout and the slides. It was a place where local children could meet.

Nearby Victoria Park is really spacious and has lots of greens, like the grass and trees. It also has a duck pond. It gives me a lot of happiness when I go there because I meet different people who are really friendly and I can make friends. I also like it because it’s a great place to have a wonderful picnic or to just play and relax.

So if you like parks like these I strongly suggest you go and see all the great wildlife in Hackney.

PREVIEW

Rise – London's biggest free music festival – takes place in Finsbury Park, N4 on 13 July, from 12pm with an eclectic line up of musicians led by the legendary Jimmy Cliff and electro-rock outfit CSS

LAST year's downpours did little to dampen the spirits of the crowds at Rise. Another fantastic line-up is sure to keep everyone happy to stick around for reggae legend Jimmy Cliff, the final act at this year's event. The main stage also features Brazilian electro rock band CSS; London dub music band the Dub Pistols; vintage teen rockers Kitty, Daisy & Lewis; hip-hop innovator and groove maker TY with full live band; and The Aliens.

The African Village stage offers world music. Artists include Bassekou Kouyate, Mali's multi-award winning ngoni maestro, Emmanuel Jal, Sudanese child soldier turned rap star and Massukos from Mozambique.

Desert Remix, presented by Global Local and Silk Road, is a showcase of Turkish, Kurdish, Berber, Middle East pop, desert music and dance by Kurdish and Sufi groups.

Underground London is a stage of famous and breaking UK urban artists – with performances from some of the most sought-after and talked about acts on the underground circuit. It is supported by inspirational youth projects and groups, Urban Development, Rising Tide, BiggaFish, CDR, Brazen Bunch, Tawiah and Green Jade.

The DJ stage celebrates the long established Trojan Soundsystem. Trojan, along with very special guests, will be on the decks with a whole range of reggae, dub and mainstream sounds.

Big Dance presents a dynamic programme of demonstrations and workshops – no experience or skill necessary. Styles include Bollywood, Flamenco and Streetdance.

Mandela with Mary Benson in 1962

By Kate Gibney

Mandela in London 1962, Museum of London, EC2

Nelson Mandela celebrates his 90th birthday on 18 July 2008. To honour this occasion Museum of London remembers his first visit to London in June 1962. The collection of 17 striking black and white photographs show a youthful Mandela in London – during some of his last days of freedom. Mandela studied law at South Africa's black-only university, where he met lifetime friend and political partner Oliver Tambo and joined the African National Congress. In 1960, the ANC was banned. Mandela was smuggled out of South Africa in January 1962, and on 7 June arrived in London. He spent 10 days in London and divided his time between ANC business and visiting old friends such as Mary Benson and Freda Levson, two white women involved with the ANC campaign. Benson took Mandela sightseeing and snapshots of him at iconic London landmarks show a man enjoying being a conventional tourist. The tour included the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey; Mandela joked that 'one day there would be a statue of a black person erected here'. It was Mandela's first trip to the capital and it was to be his last for more than 30 years. He returned to South Africa in August and was arrested and later imprisoned for 22 years. The free exhibition opens on 20 July and runs until 3 August. Mad for it

REVIEW

Madness's Suggs on stage at the Empire

By Iain Sharp

Madness at the Hackney Empire, 24 June

MADNESS successfully recreated the atmosphere of an old music hall, performing songs from their latest album and a selection of old favourites. To mark the occasion there were people dressed in period musical hall costumes who interacted with the pork pie hat and fez wearing crowd before the show. Think old time musical hall crossed with a 1980s Ska disco. The concert, to use a well worn cliché, was a game of two halves. The first, split into three acts, was devoted to songs from their new album. Any doubts about whether these new songs would live up to their old favourites were dispelled after a few verses of the first song We Are London, which was reassuringly good. Of the new songs, their latest single NW5 was a standout track, with the band playing to a backdrop of images of the area. The second half got off to a cracking start with their first ever single One Step Beyond. The vibrations from the crowd jumping up and down in time to the music shook the foundations of the Empire like an earth tremor. This was quickly followed by perennial crowd pleasers The Prince, and House of Fun, which even got the Pearly King of Peckham dancing. Superb versions of Baggy Trousers and Embarrassment were notable highlights of the night. The latter, a song about a mixed-race pregnancy reveals the bands Kinks-like knack for insightful social comment. The only disappointment was a few notable omissions such as Tomorrow's Just Another Day and Driving in My Car, but mercifully there was no Wings of a Dove. The show finished in style with an energetic Night Boat to Cairo, which capped off a thoroughly entertaining evening in the company of the Nutty Boys.

Confucius? they were

All stories by
Sylvia Arthur

CHILDREN from nine Hackney primary schools took centre stage in an opera to mark the start of the 2008 Olympic Games in Beijing and herald Hackney's role in the 2012 London Games.

Confucius Says, which premiered at the Hackney Empire, is based on Chinese myths and legends.

Set against the grandeur of The Great Wall, the opera pits the wits of Mother Goddess against the spirits of Water and Fire to balance her recipe for the human soul.

The performances on 3 and 4 July were the culmination of a year-long project in which 3,000 children – including those from Berger, Daubeney, Lauriston, Morningside and Orchard primary schools, St Dominic's, Ickburgh and Downsview Special Educational Needs Nursery School – worked with Hackney Music Development Trust to create the new opera.

The children were involved in the development of the project, which incorporated cross-curricular work, art and design and creative workshops, as well as the construction of a stunning terracotta army.

The 300 students appeared alongside Chinese actress, dancer, singer and zheng player, MeiMei in a visually spectacular evening of entertainment that included talking shoes, dancing leopards, a passing dragon, disgruntled hungry ghosts and battling cricket warriors.

Word famous authors

WRITING by young people in Hackney has been brought together in a book celebrating a project designed to get the borough reading.

Around 10,000 copies of Our Voice – Words from Hackney will hit the borough this month. The book, a joint project by The Learning Trust and law firm Linklaters, was launched at the Words Unite conference at Queen Mary University of London, E1 on 1 July. The campaign is funded by Team Hackney.

The Learning Trust Chief Executive, Alan Wood, said: "The book showcases written and visual work created by Hackney pupils at a number of Words Unite events. We hope Our Voice - Words from Hackney will encourage children to have fun with reading, writing and drawing."

The book is being given to thousands of children and being delivered to a diverse range of high-profile figures including crime writer Ruth Rendell and former Leader of the House of Lords, Baroness Amos.

It will also travel the world to international schools and be part of the Book Crossing scheme, which helps books pass from reader to reader. Copies can be found in parks, cafes and the Hackney Museum.

The Millfields team celebrate their victory

Count the prizes

PUPILS battled it out in the final for Hackney's Year Six mathematics competition.

The 36 finalists worked in teams of three, going head-to-head in the bid to be crowned champions.

Millfields Community School emerged victorious followed by Berger Primary School and Springfield Community.

The competition was split into two halves, starting with individual questions in a maths relay followed by a team problem-solving round. The annual competition saw 38 entries from Hackney primaries.

The Millfields' 'mathmagicians' won Asus Eee PCs, the Berger 'Number Heroes' received Nintendo DSs and the team from Springfield Community School were awarded a range of electronic maths games.

Sine Brown, Learning Trust Teaching and Learning Consultant said: "This encourages our pupils to get involved with maths and develop a skill-set for life."

"This is our second year running this competition, which recognises some of the gifted mathematicians we have in Hackney."

Making childcare fun

AN event to celebrate childminding in Hackney saw parents, children and childminders come together for a day of fun at Clapton Girls Technology College.

It also gave parents the opportunity to find out more about the Hackney Network of approved childminders, which recognises quality of provision and offers peace of mind to parents in the borough looking for a carer for their child. Registered childminders the chance to find out about the opportunities available.

A range of workshops and activities highlighted important areas of child development such as learning, outdoor play, partnership between parents and childminders and road safety.

Youngsters at the event were kept entertained with face painting, puppets, music and arts and crafts.

Health workers score with awards

Hackney and the City's Teenage Pregnancy Partnership team collect their award

All Stories
by Siobhan Silbert

THE borough's health professionals have gained national recognition, with two wins at the Health and Social Care Awards on 1 July.

Hackney and the City's Teenage Pregnancy Partnership was honoured for achieving a dramatic fall in teenage conception rates of 28 per cent since 1998 – more than double the national average.

A second award went to Janette Hynes, a Hackneybased senior occupational therapist who set up a pioneering football league for people with mental illness and has just received an MBE. A former professional footballer and coach, Janette won the Leadership for Improvement Award.

Baroness Molly Meacher, Chair of East London NHS Foundation Trust, was at the event to see Janette receive her award. She said: "Janette is a truly remarkable person. She has transformed the lives of hundreds of service users."

Hackney and the City's Teenage Pregnancy

Partnership works with local service providers – such as the Homerton Hospital, the City and Hackney Primary Care Trust, the Council and the Learning Trust – as well as the community and voluntary sector and young people themselves, to provide measures aimed at reducing teen conception.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children and Young People, said: "Tackling teen pregnancy is an important part of Hackney's drive to reduce inequalities and to extend opportunity to all young people in the borough. I'm pleased that the partnership's achievements have been recognised with this award."

The awards, which took place at Wembley Stadium, are run by the NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement, and the Department of Health. They aim to showcase best practice from the frontline, and this year received 2,500 applications.

Battling bottle with positive action

A SPECIALIST alcohol service to help adults in the borough who are severely dependent on drink has opened its doors.

Research suggests that 3.6 per cent of adults of working age in England are severely dependent on alcohol. If this applied to Hackney it would mean there could be over 5,500 people who need help to quit.

The new service, which opened on 1 July, will provide care to residents who have severe alcohol dependence or other complex alcohol-related problems and will be run from locations across the borough.

It will offer specialist in-depth assessment, access to medication and the option to refer people who are struggling to residential detox and rehabilitation programmes.

Consultant Psychiatrist Dr Vanessa Crawford, clinical lead for the service said: "Alcohol misuse has a huge impact on the individual, their families and the wider community.

"People can unwittingly become heavy users and not feel able to break the cycle.

"Alcohol impacts on a wide range of physical health and social problems, such as homelessness, child neglect, domestic abuse and mental distress.

"This service will help people to make changes that they need to turn their lives around."

Smokefree Hackney – one year on

A YEAR since the smoking ban came into force in England and Wales, Hackney businesses and residents seem to be embracing the legislation.

Visits arranged by the Environmental Health Smokefree Team have found that 99 per cent of enclosed and substantially enclosed workplaces and public areas in Hackney are now smoke-free.

Recent Government research suggests that the smoking ban has resulted in an increase in people breaking the habit, which has long-term benefits for the health of smokers, and those who are no longer exposed to fumes.

From 1 July, mental health units across England also went smokefree. Hackney Council, City and Hackney Primary Care Trust and East London NHS Foundation Trust worked together to ensure all of its mental health units were ready when the ban began.

Support to quit smoking is available via your local GP or community pharmacist. Call: 0800 169 1943 for comprehensive stop smoking support. To read the One Year On report in full visit: www.smokefreeengland.co.uk

LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY PLANNING (LISTED BUILDINGS AND CONSERVATION AREAS) ACT 1990, SECTION 69
ST MARK’S CONSERVATION AREA

NOTICE IS GIVEN under provision of the 1990 Act that the London Borough of Hackney Council has determined that the area described in the Schedule to this Notice is an area of special architectural or historic interest, and that it is desirable to preserve or enhance its character or appearance. It has accordingly designated the area as a “conservation area”.

The principal effects of this area being designated as a conservation area are as follows:

The Council is under a duty to prepare proposals to ensure the preservation or enhancement of the area.

Consent must be obtained from the Council for the demolition of any building in the area.

Special publicity must be given to planning applications for development in the area.

In carrying out any functions under the planning Acts (and, in particular in determining applications for planning permission and listed building consent), the Council and the Secretary of State are require to take into account the desirability of preserving or enhancing the character or appearance of the area.

Six weeks’ notice must be given to the Council before works are carried out to any tree in the area.

WHAT IS AN ARTICLE 4 DIRECTION?

The purpose of the Article 4 Direction is to protect the features that give the conservation area its special character such as front garden walls, railings, door cases, original windows, decorative ridge tiles and the like.

The Article 4 Direction will take effect from 7 July 2008 and means that the following development will now require planning permission:

1. The enlargement, improvement or other alteration of a dwelling house including changes to windows, front doors, railings and other metalwork, plasterwork, doorcases or the like;
2. The painting of the exterior of any building;
3. The erection, construction, maintenance, improvement or alteration of a gate, fence, wall or other means of enclosure;
4. The enlargement of a dwelling house consisting of an addition or alteration to its roof including the alteration or removal of chimneys and chimney pots;
5. The erection or construction of a porch outside any external door of a dwelling house;
6. The provision within the curtilage of a dwelling house of a hard surface for any purpose incidental to the enjoyment of the dwelling house as such;
7. The installation, alteration or replacement of a satellite antenna on a dwelling house or within the curtilage of a dwelling house.

There is no fee for planning applications for the above mentioned development.

By Siân Mogridge

SUNNY isn't always the best word to describe English summers, but at least in Hackney there are plenty of places to go for a stroll or a picnic when the weather is good.

This is partly thanks to previous generations of Hackney residents and Councillors, who did their best to create and preserve our green spaces.

Springfield Park was formally opened on 5 August 1905. This was quite an achievement since, several years earlier, the entire area had been put up for sale to be built on.

The Springfield Estate contained 32 acres of open land, and the rapid expansion of London at the turn of the century meant that land for development was in high demand.

Fortunately, London County Council (LCC) got wind of the proposed sale and, with strong support from the Borough Councils of Hackney and Stoke Newington, started collecting the £40,000 needed to buy Springfield Estate.

The land was meant to be sold by public auction in May 1904, but a group of residents negotiated with the owner for the sale to be delayed for a few weeks, putting down £1,000 of their own money as a deposit. LCC was able to buy it later that year. As well as money put forward by LCC and Hackney and Stoke Newington Councils, £3,000 was raised locally – a huge sum at the time.

The LCC carried out some renovation work on the park before opening it to the public – repairing fences, building paths and putting in seats. They also knocked down two large houses built on the estate, Spring House, on Spring Hill Road, and the Chestnuts which was built almost in the middle of the park. The third, Springfield House, was kept for use as a café. More commonly called the White Lodge, it's still in use today.

If we're lucky with the weather this weekend, why not stroll in Springfield Park? As you do, spare a thought for the residents who helped save this lovely green space for us to enjoy.

Money to Help You Move

Hackney

Enter the zone

LORRY drivers with highly polluting diesel vehicles now have to pay up to £200 to enter London, as the second phase of a scheme to improve residents' health begins.

The first phase of the Low Emission Zone for lorries over 12 tonnes began on 4 February.

The second phase came into force on 7 July, and affects all vehicles over 3.5 tonnes. Those entering the Greater London Authority (GLA) area must comply with the Euro III standard on the amount of pollution they emit.

The zone operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, every day of the year and covers all public roads inside the boundary, except the M25. The M1 south of London Gateway Services; the M4 east of Junction three; and the M4 spur to Heathrow are all included.

London has the worst air quality in the UK and among the worst in Europe, which worsens asthma and causes the premature deaths of an estimated 1,000 people each year in the capital.

Nick Fairholme, Head of the London Low Emission Zone at Transport for London, said: "A huge effort has been made to ensure that those affected by the zone are aware of the scheme and know what action they can take to comply."

Pupils form the jury in a mock road safety trial – aimed at teaching them important road safety messages

Road safety drama

All stories by
Gabriel Harriss

PUPILS from 10 Hackney schools learnt important road safety messages through song and dance when they saw a play performed by an innovative theatre group.

Hackney's Road Safety Team organised a tour by the Tiny Giants Theatre Company of a production called Courtroom. The play is based around an imaginary trial following a serious road accident, with the school children acting as the jury.

The show reinforces work carried out by the Road Safety Team in the borough's schools last year, which helped over 14,000 children learn about road safety issues such as how to stay safe as a pedestrian, and what passengers need to remember in the car.

The latest figures for last year show that the number of children killed or seriously injured on London's roads has fallen to the lowest rate since records began.

In 2007, the total number of children killed or seriously injured fell by 16 per cent from 392 to 331.

KEY FACT

The number of children killed or seriously injured on London's roads has fallen to its lowest since records began

Huge fans for passengers

FANS on the Tube should help make passengers feel cooler this summer.

With plans for air conditioned trains on parts of the Tube network not due until 2010, other solutions are being sought to beat the heat in packed carriages.

A scheme in which pumped-out water is used to cool platforms at Victoria Tube station is being repeated this summer, along with upgrade works on ventilation shafts for the Victoria line to double capacity.

The Tube network is the oldest in the world – and temperatures in the summer often exceed 30°C.

London Underground's Managing Director, Tim O'Toole, said: "The Underground's Victorian heritage is both its charm and its burden."

"Today it carries over a billion passengers a year and, as passenger demand continues to grow, so does the need to increase capacity and upgrade the network."

Travellers will welcome efforts to keep them cool this summer

Major changes to bus routes

NEW bus routes 425 and 488 were introduced on 5 July. Route 425 runs between Clapton, Homerton Hospital, Well Street, Mile End and Stratford. Route 488 runs between Clapton, Homerton Hospital, Hackney Wick and Bromley-By-Bow. Route S2 no longer runs, with new route 488 replacing it between Clapton and Bromley-By-Bow. Route 276 is re-routed between Stratford and Hackney Wick via Bow Church, with an increased weekday off-peak service.

“The London Underground's Victorian heritage is its charm and its burden”

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Please note: some councillors do not hold surgeries during the school Easter and summer holidays.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

HERE is another in our series of recipes courtesy of the Hoxton Apprentice restaurant, chosen by one of their successful trainees. This week's recipe is a favourite of Hayley's. Hayley, 25, is an apprentice who completed the programme earlier this year, and is now working full time at the restaurant. A single mum from Hackney, she had always wanted to work to support her family, but found it difficult to find a job that was flexible enough to meet her childcare needs.

Hayley said "I am so pleased to be able to work, earn a living and provide for my family. I feel it is really important for my children to see me working and having confidence in myself, and that I can still have time to spend with my family."

Recently, she received the Mayor of Hackney's Award for Best Social Enterprise on behalf of Hoxton Apprentice. This year she also attended a reception at Buckingham Palace where she met the Queen and was interviewed for the BBC Four Food Programme.

Asparagus with egg mimosa

Serves 4Preparation time

10 mins

Cooking time

10 mins

Ingredients

- 2 bunches of asparagus – 1kg
- 2 table spoons of chopped fresh flat leaf parsley
- zest and juice of 1 lemon
- 4 large hard boiled eggs, grated
- salt and pepper
- 25g unsalted melted butter
- 4 tablespoons of mayonnaise
- 250g baby leaf salad
- 2 table spoon of balsamic vinegar
- 4 table spoons of olive oil

Method

- Put pot of water on to boil. Cut bottom off asparagus as these tend to be woody
- Mix egg, chopped parsley, lemon zest and juice, mayonnaise and season
- When the water up boils add asparagus and cook for 3 to 5mins. Coat cooked veg in melted butter, and season
- Place 4 to 5 stalks on a plate and sit a large spoon of egg mix on top
- In a mixing bowl whisk balsamic vinegar and olive oil. Drizzle dressing over baby leaf salad, sit beside asparagus and serve

Top Apprentice tip: With this dish you want the asparagus to be a little crisp in texture

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house. Six month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people.

If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Patrick Lyster-Todd on: 020 7749 2805. For more info, visit: www.hoxtonapprentice.com

History page brought back market memories

MY daughter and son gave me a copy of Hackney Today (12 May) because they knew I'd be interested in the History page on Broadway Market. I worked for more than 30 years in Kenny's newsagent and retired just before I was 65. It was run by Jim and Lylie Ferry, their son Ken and his wife Sylvia, and several members of their family. They also had a stationery and toy shop. When I started they had old tills – similar to the ones in Open All Hours – and we had to add up in our heads. Cigarettes were sold in packets of 5s and the pre-decimal money included farthings and sixpences. I earned about £3 per week. My daughter worked as a Saturday girl when she was younger. I had some happy times. Ken and Sylvia live in Spain now, but sadly Jim and Lylie are no longer with us. I worked for the Ferry's 20 years. The 'originals' left in the market now are Bob (Cokes Pie shop); Henry (Tidiman's Butchers); and John (fruit and veg stall). They all used to work with their parents.

Many films were made in the market over the years and lots of stars came into the shop. I saw a Dempsey and Makepiece film on the television only last week, mainly shot in the market. I belonged to the Cat and Mutton Pub's ladies' darts team, and I had many a vodka and tonic in the then Sir Walter Scott Pub – happy days!

The market was busy years ago and it's nice to see so many people there now. Thanks for the memories!

Goods opinion

VIEWS are being sought on the regeneration of the Bishopsgate Goods Yard. The boroughs of Hackney and Tower Hamlets, along with the Mayor of London, are preparing plans for the development of the site in Shoreditch. Feedback will be used when drafting planning guidance. Consultation details are at: <http://www.hackney.gov.uk/ep-spd-bishopsgate-goods-yard.htm> Send comments by 18 July to susan.price@hackney.gov.uk; or by post to: Susan Price, Planning Implementation, 263 Mare Street, E8 3HT. To speak to a member of the team call: 020 8356 8196.

Feeling parky?

COME to Springfield Park and give your views on renovations and improvements. The focus is the restoration of the White House and Glass House but views on any aspect of the park, as well as ideas for new facilities are welcome. There are drop-in sessions at the White House on: 12 July, 10am to 3pm; 13 July, 12pm to 5pm; 16 July, 10am to 3pm; 23 July, 4pm to 8pm. You can also complete an online survey at: <http://www.consultationfinder.com/hackney/> There is also a special survey for young people. For more details contact: steve.lemon@hackney.gov.uk or call: 0208 356 5163.

Traffic calming

In 2006 the Council asked residents about plans to create a 20mph zone in the De Beauvoir area. During the consultation period the Council received feedback from residents proposing a road closure at the Southgate Road/Southgate Grove junction as an alternative to traffic calming. Residents of Southgate Road and Ufton Road should have received a questionnaire about the two proposals. For further details call: 020 8356 2897 or e-mail traffic.management@hackney.gov.uk A consultation document is at: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney

2012: They're Our Games

Hackney is at the heart of 2012. We are celebrating this summer as London takes up the flag as the next host city for the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

2012 is inspiring, engaging and full of opportunity. We are making the most of this by working hard for the best possible benefits for Hackney residents.

And we are celebrating too! For Handover, all of Hackney is invited to enjoy spectacular sports, cultural and carnival events with something for everyone.
